

Testing Concludes that JZ Knight and Ramtha Have Distinct, Separate DNA

Results Confirmed by three Separate Labs in Different Locations

March 10, 2015 – YELM, Washington – DNA samples taken from JZ Knight before and during a period while she was channeling Ramtha have produced a startling scientific result – the DNA from JZ Knight and the DNA from Ramtha are dramatically different.

Samples of cheek swabs were taken from JZ Knight and sent to independent laboratories in California, Florida, and Missouri specializing in DNA testing. All three of those DNA samples resulted in exact matches for Knight with gene markers of R1B Y DNA with QM242 with a DNA sequence of TACTGATCG indicating a person of French European descent.

Two days later two cheek swab DNA samples were taken from Knight as she channeled Ramtha. The results indicated dramatically different DNA from Knight – a R1B Y DNA with CM217 with a sequence of ACCAGCTGC indicating a person with American Indian and Viking descent. The mathematical probability that three separate lab samples sent to three different laboratories would get the exact same DNA sequencing two separate times is astronomical, proving that the methods were scientifically sound and the results are truly astonishing.

“There is no doubt in my mind that the DNA from JZ Knight in her everyday life and from Ms. Knight when she was channeling Ramtha demonstrate an incredibly rare scientific phenomenon,” said Dr. Matthew Martinez, JZ Knight’s personal physician, who collected the cheek swabs and sent the samples at the same time to three different laboratories. “There is no debate – the DNA samples indicate completely different people.”

DNA testing is now widely used to test for inherited diseases and to determine ancestry and biological relationships. The biochemical tests can find changes in chromosomes, proteins, and genes. Sampling DNA through cheek swab collection has become common in recent years. Many companies offer DNA sampling services for tracing family lineage and learning about one’s genetic propensities.

A widely reported story from scientists in Switzerland found that almost 70 percent of British men and up to half of all men in Western Europe are related to the Egyptian Pharaoh Tutankhamun. A Reuters story noted that the “reconstructed the DNA profile of the boy Pharaoh,” also known as King Tut, “belong to a genetic profile known as haplogroup R1b1a2, to which more than 50 percent of all men in Western Europe belong, indicating that they share a common ancestor.” Both JZ Knight and Ramtha express the R1B gene group of the Tut/Akhenaten lineage.

JZ Knight (no punctuation) is the founder of Ramtha's School of Enlightenment, the president of JZK, Inc., and the chairperson of JZ Knight Humanities Foundation. She is the sole channeler for Ramtha.
